Examing's Exhance of Current Expenses—Commitationer Sparks' Decision—Remelit's Tariff Bill.

Washington, Docember 2.—In the course of his annual report, Compiroller of the Currency Cannon, referring to the silver question, says that he believes, as was stated a year ago, that the operation of the present law which compais the coinage of 3,000,000 standard aliver declars per month, would eventually bring financial disturbance upon the country, and continues: As the silver question is more unsettled than it was at the time the foregoing was written, not only in the United States, but elsowhere, it seems doubtful it this Government should attempt to issue a circulation based upon silver, even at its bullion value, until the relative value of this metal is more definitely settled throughout the world. The discontinuance of the coinage of the silver dollar by our Government might perhaps have a tendency to bring shout some agreement with other nations, and the fixing of a standard for a series of years; it is, however, evident that the coinage of the silver dollar by our Government of the standard silver dollar to our circulating medium, and they continued. If we continue to add these dollars to our circulating medium, and they continue to accumulate in the Treasury, the Government should pay its interest and other obligations in that coin; and if the Government should pay its interest and other obligations and redeem its bonds in standard dollars, the business of the country would immediately go to a silver basis. What effect this would have it is difficult to predict. It would appear, however, that gold would go to a premium, which would compel its being held, to a certain extent, as an article of merchandise, and it would not circulate as money. This would probably occasion contraction in credits and financial disturbance. The effect upon the legal tender notes, which by the terms of section 12 of the act of July 12, 1882, appear to be redemable in gold, can not well be foressen, but it would be difficult for the

The lobby and corridors of the Grand Pacific Hotel at Chicago were thronged the other morning with veterans of the war whose Grand Army badges were conspicuously displayed on the outside of their overcoats. They were survivors of the Thirty-seventh Illinois Infantry, and had met to celebrate the anniversary of the battle of Prairie Grove. With them were representatives of the Twentieth Iowa, Twentieth Wisconsin, Twenty-sixth Indiana and Ninety-fourth Illinois, all of which regiments participated in that famous battle under General Herron. A fine banquet was spread in the evening.

A Butler County farmer has solved the greatest problem that ever vexed the souls and pocketbooks of Nebraska farmers. He has produced a variety of corn, the result of fifteen years of experiments, which is distinguished by long ears and short stalks. This grade, he thinks, will revolutionise the labor of the farmer and dispense with step-ladders in plugging the golden ears. Nebrust Exchange.
